

RENVIB – Railway Environmental Vibration Project

sponsored by UIC, Paris

Due to noise and vibration induced by modern railway lines the acceptance of new projects is very low especially by potential neighbours. The goal of the research and development project RENVIB is to establish standardised methods for prediction and assessment of noise and vibration. On the other hand forward-looking protection strategies and measures are developed based on scientific stock-taking.

